The Daily Statesman.

The Daily Statesman will appear to-morrow morning, thus resuming its position as a morning paper. Newsboys who want it will take notice of the change and govern themselves accordingly.

II The reader will find elsewhere a list of the acts and resolutions of the General Assembly, passed at the adjourned session, which closed its labors on Monday night.

Loyalty to the Union.

Supplementary to the act to provide for the creation and regulation of incorporated companies in the State of Ohio, passed May 1, 1852.

To enable the people of the townships of Bath and Miami, in Greene county, to make the Clifton and Byron tumpike road a free tumpike the loyalty of the people. These words are de- road. rived from a French word, signifying law, and hence, to be loyal is to be obedient to law, or devoted and faithful to one's duty and obligation. A loyal citizen is one who cannot be so amended. bribed or seduced from his allegiance to the Constitution and laws of his country, and to those who are duly appointed to administer them, 1852. while acting within the sphere of their constitutional and legal authority.

If there has been any one thing that has dis tinguished the American people more than any each of said townships, and to authorize the other, it has been loyalty to their confederated Union. It was by a union of the colonies that our independence was achieved. Almost as soon ing and regulating roads and bighways, passed as the revolutionary struggle was over, the first January 27, 1853 and most prominent object with the statesmen and the people of that day was to perfect that union, in order to preserve the independence already gained, and to secure the blessings of liberty to themselves and their posterity. This darling object was at length accomplished in the which went into operation in 1789.

Next to the Declaration of Independence the adoption of the Federal Constitution, which consolidated the union that had before existed in a crude and immature state, is the most important and momentous event in American history. The national sentiment was fitly expressed in the national motto-"E Pluribus Unum" -one out of many-one nation, one government formed out of many separate and distinct sovereignties, that had originally united in the defence of their liberties, and were now consolidated in a permanent union for their maintenance and preservation. From that time forward, the American heart has clung to the Union as the citadel of its safety and prosperity. What the terms nation and country have been to other peoples, the word Union has been to Americans. It has carried with it to the bosom of every man, the ideas of nationality, of a common interest and a common destiny A man who would deliberately plot the severance to the organization of cities and incorporate of the Union was, by common consent, consigned to the same roll of infamy as BENEDICT AR-NOLD and AARON BURK.

Is this sentiment of loyalty to the Union extinct in the American bosom? A few months ago, a stranger unfamiliar with the holy memcries and the undying affections that cluster pleas, and to prescrib the manner of it posed, from the seeming indifference and spathy with which the threatened profanation of that Ark was viewed, that the people had forgotten the noble purposes for which it was reared and consecrated. But as soon as an aggressive and hostile hand was raised to jostle the Ark of our Covenant from its place, the unanimity and zeal with which the mass of the people in a majority of the States rallied to save it from the gain and supplementary to an act passed April 5, 1856, entitled "an act to provide for the organization of cities and incorporated villages," passed May 3, 1852, and the several acts amendatory thereof, and supplementary to said acts. unballowed touch of disloyalty and treason, would have convinced the most skeptical visitor, opening and regulating roads and highways, that the old spirit of loyalty and devotion was passed January 27, 1853. as warm in the hearts of the present generation of Americans as in those of their ancestors.

We have indubitable evidence that nearly all the people in a majority of the States are the sale of school lands and the currender o loyal to the Union. We have strong reasons for believing that a large portion, if not a majerity of the citizens in those States, whose governments have not come forward to maintain the Union in this crisis, possess the same sentiment of loyalty in their hearts. It needs but a a free turnpike road. fitting opportunity to be kindled into a blaze of patriotism. Loyalty to the Union is to be found in the East and the West, in the North and the South; it is like the air or the sunlight, universal, and is destined to save our glorious country from being divided into separate, petty and hostile sovereignties.

But the success of the Republicans and the election of their President was no cause for the revolutionary movement in the Cotton States, which followed. STITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

Mr. PLANTS said, he desired very briefly to state his reasons for opposing the adoption of the proposition for amending the Constitution now before the House. He said he had heard adoption will have in winning back to their alle giance the second States, and to prevent the second of others. But he did not believe its adoption would have any such effect. Whatev er else may be true, it is not true that the lead ing spirits in the secession movement are fools.
But unless they are hopelessly demented, such an amendment, adopted with the pretended object in view can have no such effect. They know, as all the world knows, that the Republicans without exception hold, and have ever held slave-ry to be a purely local institution, limited to the States which maintain it, and over which Congress has no control whatever. And in this unanimous opinion of the Republicans he believed the masses of all other parties now concurred. If, then, with this knowledge, the slave States have determined to break up the Union and destroy the Governme established by the Constitution as it is, does any sane man pretend to believe that the adoption of this amendment will bring back the revolted States to their allegiance, or prevent others from joining them?

There is no evidence that a single slavel State desires the adoption of this amendment, or that its adoption will have the slightest effect upon stitution as it is. The proposed amendmendoes not meet the demands of the disunionists and no others have any objection to the Constitution as our fathers bequeathed it to us. Nothing less than a radical change in the structure and workings of the Constitution, a minority representing a sectional class interest, or a dissolution of the Union, will satisfy the secessionists. This amendment does neither. It, in fact, does not make any practical change at all, for nobody proposes to do what the amendment purports to prohibit. The se cessionists are not so stupid as not to see this. Its adoption, therefore, being unasked by thembeing, so far as they are concerned, a delusion or sham, will have a tendency rather to irritate than to satisfy them. It can do no good, therefore, and will only tend to complicate our diffi-culites, and widen the breach which it is pro-essedly intended to close up.

But, Mr. P. said, there was another reason. which was conclusive with him, against the adoption of the proposition.

The General Assembly of the State of Ohio, in generous response to her sister States of

But if treason becomes so strong as to become a successful revolution, how will you This amendment will either give to slavery a made it, never gave, or it will not. If it does, its passage will be a stultification of sentiment of the people of the State, and if it does not, transparent sham is an insult to the South. In any event the passage of the resolu-tion, under present circumstances, is ill timed uncalled for, improper.
